

ABSTRACT

A system and a method for providing automated formal membership recruitment process for clubs, membership organizations, sororities, and fraternities. In a preferred embodiment, such functions are available in a networked environment and the time, expense and effort needed in performing these services are greatly reduced. The present invention can be utilized in club and/or organizational membership administration, communication, collaboration, and/or promotion with members of that organization regardless of duration and/or type.